2. Citations and explanations:

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: JP 2000-241607 A

1. Novelty

1) Concerning claim 1

Claim 1 of the present invention is concerned with polymer patterns having at least one pattern which is concave from the surface of the polymer patterns in a direction perpendicular to the substrate and extends in a direction parallel to the substrate, wherein the vertical cross-section of the concave pattern has at least one curved surface.

D1 relates to a microlens array and a forming method thereof wherein the concave pattern is formed on a substrate.

The fig. 4 of D1 shows polymer patterns having at least one pattern which is concave from the surface of the polymer patterns in a direction perpendicular to the substrate and extends in a direction parallel to the substrate, wherein the vertical cross-section of the concave pattern has at least one curved surface. Therefore, the subject matter of claim 1 does not seem to be novel(PCT Article 33(2)).

2) Concerning claim 2

D1 discloses that the vertical cross-section of the concave pattern has a circular or oval shape. Therefore, the subject matter of claim 1 does not seem to be novel(PCT Article 33(2)).

2. Inventive Step

1) Concerning claims 3 - 5

Even if claims 3-5 of the present invention define the arrangement of the polymer patterns, the kind of a polymer and the shape of the vertical cross-section of the concave pattern, these can be deduced from the cited prior art document without an inventive effort. Accordingly, the subject matter of claims 3-5 does not appear to involve an inventive step.

2) Concerning claims 6 and 7

Claims 6 and 7 relate to a method of forming the polymer patterns having the vertical cross-section of the concave pattern on a substrate. The polymer patterns having the concave pattern do not have the technical features which is particular in comparison with D1. And, the forming method of the present invention is well known in forming a pattern. Accordingly, the subject matter of claims 3-5 does not appear to involve an inventive step.

3) Concerning claims 8-29

Claims 8-29 relate to a metal film pattern, a metal pattern, a plastic mold using thereof, and a microlens array. Even if the present invention uses a metal instead of polymer for forming a pattern, this selection of the material can be easily made by a person skilled in the art and the method of forming a pattern, a plastic mold and a microlens array using thereof, can be easily invented by a person skilled in the art as well. Therefore, the subject matter of claims 8-29 does not appear to involve an inventive step.

The subject matter of claims 1-29 meets the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(4).
